The Illinois Mormon.

It is said that there are ten thousand Joe Smith Mormons in Illinois and the adjacent States.

Their most considerable settlement is at Plano, a thriving village about fifty miles west of Chicago. Here resides Joseph Smith, "Prophet, Priest, and King" of the "Latter Day Saints," by virtue of the laying on of hands of his notable father, "Joseph Smith, the Martyr" as he is called by the faithful.

There is no doubt that the assassination of the Mormon prophet gave a powerful impetus to the advancement of this new and strange religion. Smith strongly enforces monogamy as the true doctrine, and this constitutes the principal difference between the Illinois and Utah Mormons. An account of the Illinois Mormons says:

It is worth mentioning that the "Golden Book" is considered as merely supplementary to the Bible—in which, both the Old and New Testaments, the Mormons believe as strictly as any other body of Christians. That they consider themselves Christians (contrary to the opinion of many who suppose them to be a mere variety of Mohammedans) is apparent from the very name of the order, "The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints." Indeed, they usually speak of themselves not as Mormons but as "Latter Day Saints."

Joseph Smith is not a rich man; and, indeed, by way of testimony against the wealth and worldliness of Brigham Young, bears himself with an ostentatious poverty of apparel and equipage. He dresses almost shabbily, and is a man of no pretensions to scholarship or refinement. His manners are simple hearty, and unaffected, and his popularity with his followers is unbounded. The community here at Plano is well spoken of by the "Gentiles" as moral, orderly, and industrious, and in their quiet demeanor and friendliness very much resemble a society of Quakers.

It is mentioned as a remarkable fact, that while the Mormons of Utah are to a large extent importations from Europe, those of Illinois are almost exclusively native Americans, and of higher intelligence than the saints of Salt Lake. Springfield Republican.

The Difference.

From an article in an Eastern paper we learn that the Josephite branch of the Mormon Church is in a flourishing condition in Illinois and adjoining States, under the spiritual guidance of Joseph Smith, jr., a son of the so-called martyr and prophet. This branch of the church differs from the Brighamite order mainly in the all-important matter of Polygamy, the Josephites claiming that the doctrine of plurality, or "spiritual marriage," is an inalienable right of the original Mormon, and that he never by word or deed gave sanction to the foul crime. However this may be, we know not, but it is certain that previous to the death of Smith, Polygamy was never openly practiced in the church, and the so-called "revelation" instituting it was not published to the world until some time subsequent to the death of Smith. This fact operates very much against the pretensions of the hierarchy in this Territory, who claim that Smith was the restorer of the doctrine.

It appears that the "Josephites" are a sober, honest, industrious, law-abiding people, consequently the canting cry of "persecution" is never heard among them. They live quietly and peaceably with their neighbors, attend to their own business, obey the laws of their country without murmur or complaint, worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, without inculcating the civilization of the age by practices repugnant to society and blasphemy in the sight of God and man, and are not forced to the expedient of emigrating their lives with the criminal records of the country, in order to prove themselves not quite so bad as they might be.

We are glad to learn those facts, because they afford a complete refutation of the oft-repeated slander that we "persecute" the Mormon people on account of their religious faith. We have frequently declared that with the Mormons, simply as such, we have nothing to do. It is the unlawful practices and not the religious faith of this people against which we contend. It is vain that they claim polygamy to be a system of worship, and seek exemption from outraged law on that account. The plea is not good, in as much as any other crime known to the calendar could seek immunity in the same plea. The Thine of India honor their Deity by the foulest practices of murder; Paganism everywhere offers up human sacrifices to appease the wrath of its gods; and the Hindoo widow who expires on the funeral pile of her husband, is told that she secures "exaltation" in another world by so doing. Is the prohibition of such practices in every civilized country an evidence of intolerance and persecution? And yet these polygamous prophets would make it appear so. Certainly, if enforcement of the law of the land is "persecution," the best way to avoid it is to obey the law. Is not that both plain and reasonable?

GENERAL NEWS.

Chicago, March 21. A terrific hail storm passed over Northern Illinois, yesterday afternoon, doing considerable damage, hailstones as large as hen eggs fell in some places.

Washington, March 21. Dr. Ballard, of Oregon, has been appointed Governor of Idaho, and will doubtless be confirmed by the Senate. John M. Thayer, of Neb., has been promoted Major General.

New York, March 21. Many dry goods are sold off late for currency at less than cost in gold. Several failures are reported in the provision trade at Buffalo, and some extent created here to day by the disappearance of a Broad Street produce dealer with $100,000 insurance. Circles throw out mysterious limits of other Cos. about to pass into hands of Receivers. Domestic commerce of this port is in flourishing condition and steamers for Southern ports go out full of freight and passengers.

Boston, March 21. Certain liquor seized at Taunton last week by state constable was yesterday received by the Marshal and returned to owners on ground that United States license under the Internal revenue law took precedence. The State law case excites much comment, and raises an interesting issue.

New York, March 21. The steamer New York, sailed to-day for Aspinwall, among the passengers was Thos. W. Knox, a well known correspondent, lately connected with the Associated Press agency, who will accompany the telegraph expedition through Siberia and Russia.

Chicago, March 22. The order detaching Gen. Sheridan as a member of the Special Army Board, to meet in St. Louis, reached him in New Orleans, just as he was preparing to go on an important service to the Rio Grande frontier. The troops there are said to be in a satisfactory condition, and fears are entertained in consequence that new complications might arise between our Government and the French or Mexicans. He deemed it necessary, therefore, to go there and regulate affairs in that department, so as to maintain order. The Secretary of War did not, therefore, repeat the order for his presence at St. Louis, and the Board will doubtless proceed without him.

No conclusion has been arrived at by the Ways and Means Committee on the Finance Bill. They will take a vote on it to-morrow, with a probability of rejecting it, and again reporting the bill which came so near passing.

Secretary McCulloch contends that he must have complete control over all securities.

Lafin, of New York, Chairman of the House Committee on Printing, in his report of yesterday on printing the Patent Office Report, made an expose of the amount of paper used by Government, calculated to open the eyes of the public. He says Government uses one-tenth of all the printing paper used in the United States, and that the Government expenditure for printing is one-twelfth of the cost of all printing done in the United States; and in fact that the Government is the greatest publishing house in the world, and when Government goes into the paper market to buy, it affects the whole paper trade, consequently if by Congress were made, it would have a sure effect in reducing the price than by lowering the tariff.

The quantity of printing now ordered was so enormous that Congress had to take one of three choices—to order, to wait for the execution of the work, or to enlarge the Government printing office. Several Congressmen had an interview with the President, among them Senator Foster, Gen. Hawley, Union candidate for Governor, Collector Babcock, of New Haven. The interview was of a personal and private nature, and reported to have been satisfactory to the callers. The President assured them he had given no intimation of a desire for the election of Mr. English, but on the contrary desired the success of the Union nominee, and was glad to see the disposition of the people to reward soldiers.

The House Election Committee voted six to three that James B. Coates is not a validly elected Senator, and that Wm. E. Dodge is. It has been anticipated for some time that Brooks would be ousted on the ground of fraudulent votes.

There is a call issued by the National Union Club, of which Alex W. Randall, First Assistant Postmaster General is President, for a grand mass meeting to be held at Washington next week, to endorse President Johnson's satisfactory to the callers. The President assured them he had given no intimation of a desire for the election of Mr. English, but on the contrary desired the success of the Union nominee, and was glad to see the disposition of the people to reward soldiers.

The bill passed by the House yesterday not only prohibits compensation for Government business performed by land grant railroads, but provides that roads constructed with State money connect, to form through routes, this latter section being intended to apply to the Delaware and Raritan Railway, so as to permit it to make direct connection between Philadelphia and New York, thus insuring the carrying of goods made to the Camden and Amboy Railroad. The first class is intended to apply to the Illinois Central and all other railroads built upon land grants.

The Rhode Island Democratic Convention, yesterday, made no nominations, but appointed a committee to bring forward a ticket hereafter, if deemed expedient. Resolutions were adopted declaring the Constitution to be the foundation of American Liberty, opposing tradition without representation, and endorsing Andrew Johnson.

Foreign News.

New York, March 22. The steamship Australian, Liverpool 10th and Queenstown the 11th, arrived this morning. The last week of June has been agreed upon for the start of the cable to Europe from the Atlantic Cable. Upwards of a hundred miles of cable is now manufactured per week. Unimpaired confidence is expressed in the success of the expedition. Reform papers are actively discussed in newspapers. Gladstone's announcement on the 22nd, anxiously waited for by the House of Commons, after D. Israeli had given notice of the amendment which will make an oath recognize the supremacy of the Queen and acknowledge allegiance to her successor.

The Irish police continue to carry out their extraordinary power with great vigor. Nine men were arrested at Cork just after landing from America.

It is stated that the Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs is authorized to make a French treaty with the Mexican Government, as to the completion of the Austrian volunteers for Mexico.

The London Sunday Gazette of the 7th gives a report that Austria solicited the good offices of England to effect an amicable settlement of the question of Duchies between Austria and Prussia, but Earl Clarendon refused. The Gazette says the relations between the Cabinets at Vienna and Berlin stand very lightly, and is a long way from diplomatic conflict to war.

The sitting of the Conference on Principalities was held at Paris on the 19th. All the Powers who signed the Paris Treaty were represented.

Spain has demanded of Portugal the extradition of Spanish soldiers who had taken refuge in Portugal. Portugal hesitates to comply.

FROM UTAH TO MONTANA.

Through the Mormon Settlements—The Jalous Saint—The O. S. Line and is Conductors—The Genoa Stage Driver—Mornings by Midnight, and one thing or another.

It requires much more judgment to suppress than genius to make public the many sketches which observation naturally draws, while traveling through these territories. Our note-book was high full from jottings of the first day's run, from Zion to Bear River, and in our last we barely broached upon the first few pages; but now, that other sights and subtle hourly break in view, we will be forced to either fall behind in our stage sketches, or condense them and keep even with the trip. The latter is thought to be the better, though the contexts and connections can't well help from being broken and the illustrations brief. Traveling over those eighty miles of Mormondom referred to in our last, there lies along the west side of the plateau, for eight miles, from Salt Lake City on to Escalante, an oblong strip of water known as Hot Springs Lake, which is fed from the several hot springs that run out of the ridge's base, right of the road, westward to the valley intervening between it and the Great Lake. Along the line up north are met at every point poor pilgrims to the Holy City, some on foot to beg permission of the Prophet to do this and that, and others in their wagons, with their wives and sacks of produce, packed promiscuously, to barter off—the truck and not the women—for some store goods, in the city, after they have paid their tithings and taxes ostensibly levied for "bringing up the emigration," but in reality for furnishing their leading leaders with material to further their "hampers of old priesthood style." (The balance left for bartering for store goods is generally mighty light.) Many of the Mormons through these settlements are unmistakable, particularly the polygamists. You can read it in their sensual or adobe countenances and in their dark, distrustful looks. The masses are aliens, from Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Wales and England. The bishops and leaders are generally Yankees, with here and there an Englishman or Scandinavian scattered in, to give a specious shade of honesty to the priestly humbug. The dress of the peasants, Mormon men and women, is gotten up regardless of esthetics; ignoring altogether Godey's Lady's Book and Scott's Fashion Plates. Those blue bag-shaped breeches of Utah jeans, those hay-bag booties and those Shaker skirts of linsey woolsey texture, strung around the women, well compared with other "acc's" of the dark ages advocated by the Saints. Little or no intelligence is visible in their eyes, or on their brows, even eying 'em through a field-glass. The vulgar herd apparently exhibit but one brand—and that is everywhere "B. Y." Along the road, the meals served up at Mormon stations are comparatively curvilinear, notwithstanding the force of females there that might be able to get up much more mathematically square. Carrot is a pre-dominant. (Our home-readers will understand this.) Carrots are good exculents in their way, but pies prepared of 'em (and served up frozen—to make 'em tender) are too much of a good thing, to the tune of a dollar and a half a dose. Near Kayaville, we were shown the oleaginous old coon who, once upon a time, after taking his oats and wheat to market in that town, and getting a little the worse of Valley Tan, (wolf bait), turned about him but to see some other Saint conversing quite familiarly with the youngest of his three wives who were seated squatwise on the wheat sacks in his wagon, and then thus addressed him, as affectionately as a mother could expect a monster impulse could allow—look at that brother Stoddard, (there a lengthy pause) the poor fellow was pretty full—and with emphatic earnestness he adds—that's all mine!

At Brigham City we were shown the brick dwellings of a saint who has a quartette of dear wives to take to heaven, (for "exaltation") two of 'em being sisters of each other, and the other two daughters of his own brother! They have three in many of these county towns, to which the males march up majestically each evening, accompanied by their "last wife" or "next one" in prospective, but in a style not customary in the gentle walks of gallantry, to wit—with a woman on their left arm and a bag of salt or a sack of "garden sass" upon their right. In these country stores the women will come in with aprons full of eggs, asking for six eggs' worth of tea, six eggs' worth of thread and needles, low-necked shoes, &c. Between Ogden and Box Elder there are two or three mammoth springs, cold and hot, which rise up and run as rapidly as a river, and some of which are welcome enjoyed by hosts of irrigated farms in that section.

The Widowed.
She is modest, she is bashful,
Free and easy, but not bold—
Not too young, ripe and mellow,
Not too young, and not too old,
Half inviting, half repulsive,
Now advancing, and now shy;
There is mischief in her smile,
There is danger in her eye.
She has studied human nature,
She is schooled in all her ways,
She is skilful in her diplomacy,
She is mistress of all her ways,
She can tell you every moment
When to sigh and when to smile—
On a woman's sometimes charming,
But a widow all the while.
You are sad? How very serious
Will her handsome face become;
Are you angry? She is wretched,
Lonely, friendless, fearful, dumb,
Are you mirthful? How her laughter,
Silver sounding, will ring out!
She can lure and catch and play you,
As the angler does the trout.
All old bachelors of forty,
Who have grown so bold and wise
Ye Adonises of twenty,
With your love-locks in your eyes,
You may practice all the lessons
Taught by Cupid since the fall,
And know a little widow,
Who would make you all.
